

CHANGING THE DISCIPLINE THROUGH PEDAGOGY

Posted on January 9, 2023 by urban Categories: Archive, Climax Change!, Contributors, Daniel A. Barber, Densities, Energy and sustainability, expanding design practices, Formats, No Density, Pedro Gadanho, Politics and economics, Talk, Technology and fabrication, Topics

Tags: Adaptive reuse, Architect's role, Architecture&climate, Architecture&environment, Architecture&knowledge, Building regulations, Building Technology, Climate change, Climax Change, Collective Awareness, Cultural agitator, Designing Strategies, Ecological agencies, Environment, History of Architecture, Industry, Inequality, Materials, On Discourse and Practices, Research, Resources, Shade Shaping, Social dynamics, talk, Tectonics, Wealth

urbanNext Lexicon

Changing the Discipline through Pedagogy

<https://urbannext.net/changing-the-discipline-through-pedagogy/>

In this talk, Daniel Barber reflects on rethinking pedagogical frameworks that value alternative modes of practice. Daniel also discusses how re-imagining the building industry can be an opportunity to develop a new historiography that considers equity and redistribution of wealth.

ISSN : 2575-5374

urbanNext Lexicon

Changing the Discipline through Pedagogy

<https://urbannext.net/changing-the-discipline-through-pedagogy/>

ISSN : 2575-5374