Sitting on the outskirts of Bussy-sur-Moudon, this village community hall replaces the previous one, which burned down in 2019. The hall is designed with a wooden frame structure that opens up transversally towards the village's center and the landscape in the background. It sits on a semi-underground base that includes a parking garage and houses the new premises for the municipal administration.

The ground floor reflects the apparent simplicity of the exterior. The spatial qualities are enhanced by the seamlessness of the stone floor and the rhythms of the wooden ceiling, both treated in
