

EMERGING FORMS OF COLLECTIVITY IN THE GLOBAL SOUTH

Posted on September 17, 2016 by laura

Categories: High Density, Ibai Rigby Assoc., Middle Density, Politics and economics, Talk, Teresa Caldeira, Territory and mobility

Tags: Architecture, Architecture&art, Cities, Citizen interaction, Citizen's role, City development, City of walls, City Planning, Collective identity, Collective research, Future generations, Future tendencies, Gender, Global discourse, Global South, Identity, Istanbul, Jakarta, Johannesburg, Mapping, New Delhi, New urban worlds, Public coexistences, Public conditions, Public Space, Public space role, São Paulo, Social strategies, talk, Urban conditions, Urban culture, Urban design, Urban organization, Urban planning, Urban policies, Urbanism, Violence

<https://vimeo.com/urbannext/teresa-caldeira-emerging-forms-collectivity>

In this short excerpt of an interview to anthropologist and professor Teresa Caldeira, she explains to the interviewer Kathrin Golda-Pongratz her most recent project on the emerging forms of collectivity in cities of the Global South. The aim of this project, participated also by AbdouMaliq Simone, Gautam Bham and Kelly Gillespie, is to study the new kinds of urban living that emerge from the generation that was born in the city, grew up under democratisation, is fluent in rights-talk and appropriates public space through street culture.

urbanNext Lexicon

Emerging Forms of Collectivity in the Global South
<https://urbannext.net/emerging-forms-of-collectivity/>

ISSN : 2575-5374