

MIND THE (COMMUTING) GAP AND THE CITY

Posted on May 5, 2021 by martabuges

Categories: And The City, expanding design practices, Hagar Abiri, No Density, Podcast, Politics and economics, Prima Abdullah, Territory and mobility

Tags: Accessibility, Architecture&Gender, Cities, Dataviz & simulation, Economy, Elderly, Essay, India, Inequality, Japan, Mapping, Megacities & High Density, Mobility, New Delhi, Political implications, Public Transport, Security, Technology, Tokyo, Urban infrastructure, Urban mobility, User's experience, Violence, Women

urbanNext Lexicon

Mind the (Commuting) Gap and the City
<https://urbannext.net/mind-the-commuting-gap-podcast/>

Tokyo in 1994 was already a city with one of the lowest crime rates. With only 60 crimes per 100.000 population, it has earned a reputation of one of the safest cities. Unfortunately, not everyone is not experiencing the same sense of safety, at least 70% of women commuting has experience harassment. Join Prima and Hagar as they examine problems faced by female commuter in the city, with our guest human rights issue researcher Puri Kencana Putri.

<https://open.spotify.com/episode/6oiewl8IzBOZy6XtBhoRxe?si=b-7S2doET7WXC2DpvmJz7Q>

ISSN : 2575-5374

urbanNext Lexicon

Mind the (Commuting) Gap and the City
<https://urbannext.net/mind-the-commuting-gap-podcast/>

ISSN : 2575-5374