

SEXISM AND THE CITY: FROM POLICY TO INFRASTRUCTURE

Posted on March 11, 2021 by martabuges

Categories: And The City, No Density, Podcast, Politics and economics, Urban Paradigms

Tags: Accessibility, Architecture&Gender, City life, Collective Awareness, Economy, Gender, Homeless, Inequality, Infrastructure, podcast, Political & Economic Approach, Political implications, Public Space, Street network, Urban policies, Urban sociology, Well-being

urbanNext Lexicon

Sexism and the City: From Policy to Infrastructure
<https://urbannext.net/sexism-policy-infrastructure/>

The city can be discriminating, from its policy to its infrastructure, or public space to private toilet space. It can sometimes designed without considering women and the most vulnerable member of society. Join us as we talk how the city can be a safe space for everyone with our guest: the author of 'No Place to Go', Lezlie Lowe.

https://open.spotify.com/episode/04mTlGDDkiv9pulE8zARvv?si=W_MZ7c6GSKanRXfQbjTww

ISSN : 2575-5374

urbanNext Lexicon

Sexism and the City: From Policy to Infrastructure
<https://urbannext.net/sexism-policy-infrastructure/>

ISSN : 2575-5374