

TIME AND TRUST IN THE CITY: AN URBAN DEBATE

Posted on November 2, 2018 by martabugues

Categories: Amateur Cities, Lilet Breddels, New Generations, No Density, Politics and economics, Talk, Urban Paradigms, UrgentCity

Tags: Adaptive system, Architect's challenge, Architect's role, Building, City, City Planning, Collective authorship, Collective identity, Identity, Open systems, Political & Economic Approach, Space-time relationship, talk, Time, Urban Paradigms, User's experience

Lilet Breddels chose not to select four words and instead chose two words - twice - time and trust. In the interview she explained why she thinks it is important to add them to the domain of the urban debate and how the lack of both is currently shaping it.

